

Prediction for the 2016 U.S. Presidential Election

by Phillip W. Weiss

On November 8, 2016 the national political torture will end, at least for now. On that date the American voters will decide who will be the next POTUS, and contrary to all the polls and prognosticators who were predicting a victory for Hillary Clinton, their decision will be Donald J. Trump. Nationally, Trump will lose the popular vote but win a majority of the electoral vote. In many so-called battleground states, his winning margin will be less than 1.5 percent.

PWW 10/26/16