

Commentary on the recent storm

From: legalman99@aol.com <legalman99@aol.com>

Subject: forest from trees-ny,nj bombed out.

To: jnemagpie@yahoo.com

Date: Sunday, November 4, 2012, 2:29 PM

Dear Julian:

Phil Weis (sic) details the "trees" of this hurricsane (sic). I shall detail the "forest".

NY is a bombed out town. I don't mean literally but, in fact, there is no more infrastructure (sic) remaining in NY. There is only one functioning tunnell (the lincoln) (sic) remaining. All the other tunnels are kaput. Driving home from Kennedy, we saw sign after sign when approaching a tunnel that said closed UFN (until further notice).. (sic) There are numerous (sic) transit lines knocked out. The path train from NJ to NY will be out for many months if ever it returns.

Right now there is a shortage of gasoline. When that problem is solved, and more people drive and go to work, the transit problems will multiply. In short NY will be a paralyzed (sic) town for many months to come.

NJ is (sic) far worse. NJ tranbsit (sic) is destroyed; the Jersey shore is destroyed, Bergen County and north Jersey are destroyed, etc, (sic) etc.

As for being "bombed out" take a look at pictures of Brezy (sic)Point in the Rockaway. At Brezy Point over a hundred homes burned down. Google it. The area looks like it was a victim of a WW11 carpet bombing. It is really "ugly" in the NJ-NY region.

Bobby